REVISIONS OF ICE CREAM AND ICE MILK DATA
By States, 1940-1949

A number of dairy plants manufacturing frozen dairy products erroneously classified some of their production as "ice milk" in reporting from 1940-1949 to the United States Department of Agriculture for statistical purposes, according to the Agricultural Marketing Service.

A study has been recently completed by the Department to classify properly the production reported in error. Fortunately, only a small number of plants and States were involved.

Based on the results obtained through this study, revisions have been made where necessary in the data for the States concerned. The corrected figures, as well as figures that need no revisions, are shown in the tables included in this publication. All revised figures are marked with asterisks and they supersede all previous figures published for the years and States involved.
